New computer course design to face CAA for final approval

by Julie Cambria

"Computer Awareness," a new course which could be a graduation requirement for all students entering in fall 1985, will be proposed to the Council on Academic Affairs Thursday.

The two hour course, proposed by a CAA subcommittee, is designed to give students an understanding of the computer, its operations, capabilities, limitations, history, and effects on society.

"Computer Awareness" is numbered DEPT 1199 and would be offered separately by each academic department so the content of the course can be geared to the specific area in which it is being taught.

Jon Laible, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and CAA subcommittee member, said he thinks the course "is a good means for students who aren't already computer literate to achieve computer literacy."

Laible said that the course is being offered as an "all university proposition" because "no single department on campus has the man power to handle the load of students."

Laible added that each department would write a course description and outline based on the subcommittee course description and outline.

But A. J. Schaeffer, former director of computer services, is opposed to the computer awareness requirement and has sent a formal objection to the CAA.

"It's not clear that what they are proposing should be required from everyone," Schaeffer said. "I want us to have a computer awareness course but I don't think it should be a graduation requirement today."

Schaeffer added that he thinks the course should be offered out of a computer-oriented department instead of every academic department.

"I feel that it should be offered through a department with computer competence," Schaeffer said. "It should be housed in the data processing or math department."

Mark Erwin, CAA student member and subcommittee member, said he believes a computer awareness course should be required.

"I'm totally behind it and I think it is needed," Erwin said. "Computers are touching base with everyone's life."

"I personally feel you shouldn't get out of college without knowing something about computers because they are such a big part of society today," Erwin added.

But some CAA members have reservations about the course.

Bob Saltmarsh said he was concerned because the course doesn't fall under one department.

"I'm concerned in terms of generic governance," Saltmarsh said.

"I think computers are here to stay, but I don't know if we have to get fanatical about it," Saltmarsh added. "We may be lighting the fuse too soon."

CAA member Alan Aulabaugh said he believes the question of computer instruction in universities is a difficult issue to consider.

"The questions are should we do it and can we do it," Aulabaugh said.

The CAA is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Union Arcola-Tuscola room.

Interviews underway, first finalist likes 'down-home' university style

by Kerri Niemann

An eagerness to learn and years of experience in college public relations are what Dorothy Watt Williams said she has to offer to Eastern as a candidate for director of university relations.

Interviews with the first of the four candidates began Wednesday and will continue Thursday for the replacement of retiring director of university relations Ken Hesler.

Williams met with the university relations search committee at 2 p.m. and had an open meeting with faculty, students and staff at 3 p.m.

She said her experience includes 20 years of public relations, public affairs and publications, with an understanding of the dynamics of a university.

Williams said this also includes an understanding of the faculty-student-staff relationships.

Although Williams said this was her first time at Eastern and she had not yet had the opportunity to tour the campus, she is eager to learn.

"It's exciting to have everything down-home around the corner," she said, "You don't have to go through layers of administration" to get things accomplished.

Williams said if she receives the position at Eastern, she would want Eastern President Stanley Rives to define her duties.

She said she believes her job is to carry out the president's definition of that position.

Public relations of a university is everyone's responsibility, she said. This encompasses answering phones in a cheerful manner, having the alumni perceive the university favorably, treating prospective students well and greeting current students with a smile when they enter a university office or department.

Presently, Williams works as a coordinator of public information for the University of Illinois-Urbana where she said the size of the institution makes it harder to get things done.

Williams graduated from Swarthmore College, with a degree in English literature, later earning her master's degree in English literature from the U of I.

Her first work experience in public information was at Cornell University, where she was in charge of all public relations, she said, including being media liaison for the New York State Home Extension office.

In 1969, Williams began working for the U of I as assistant director of public information and in 1978, became coordinator of public information.

Williams said her duties in that position include producing the Illini Weekly, which is weekly newspaper for the faculty and staff of the university and all publicity for Krannert Center.

It was also her responsibility to create goodwill among faculty and report the internal affairs of the university, she said.

Williams will continue her interviews at Eastern Thursday, meeting with the academic deans and directors, the university relations staff. She will conclude her visit with a tour of the campus and city of Charleston.

Patricia Szymczak, the second of the four candidates will begin her interviews with the search committee Thursday at 9 a.m. She will meet the the vice presidents at 10 a.m. and the academic deans and directors at 11 a.m.

Szymczak will meet with the university relations staff at 2 p.m. and there will be an open meeting for students, faculty and staff at 3 p.m. in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Discount card still going to be dealt with help from ads

by Genene Bergeron

Although the student discount card program hit a snag while looking for enough merchants to advertise on the card, The Daily Eastern News has agreed to co-sponsor the program.

Financial Vice President Tammy Walker said because approval of the program by the student government, the Apportionment Board and the President's Council was not final until the second week in September, there was little time to put the program together.

Walker said the program had been budgeted for a minimum of 18 sponsors but due to a limited amount of time there are currently only 10 sponsors.

The lack of available sponsors caused the student government to run short of funds for the program.

"I think that with a little more time we would have had the merchants that we needed, but we wanted to distribute the cards to the students as soon as possible," Walker said.

The discount card program was "not ever meant to be a profit making project," she noted, but we wanted to be able to support the program with just the funds from merchants.

The $50 contributions from the 10 merchants covered all the printing costs of the program and for two half-page ads in News.

However, in order to fulfill its obligations to the

Soviets buy additional U.S. wheat

WASHINGTON—The Soviet Union has bought an additional 100,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat—about 3.67 million bushels—for delivery in the coming year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The Soviets now have bought almost 14.9 million tons of corn and wheat since June 29. Most of the grain has been for delivery in the second year of the two countries' long-term supply agreement, which began on Oct. 1.

The latest sale was reported to the department by private exporters, as required by law. No other prices or details were disclosed.

However, the department says the latest estimated farm price of wheat is $3.43 per bushel. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans.

Caterpillar predicts rough year

PEORIA, Ill.—Caterpillar Tractor Co., trying to regain the profits eluding it since 1981, Wednesday slashed quarterly dividends to stockholders and hinted at more layoffs, plant closings and another rough year ahead.

Besides reducing dividends by two-thirds, the company said it plans to freeze hiring, reduce production, speed up already-announced plant closings, further shrink factory space and cut inventories.

The dividend action is the first such cut since 1982 and only the second time Caterpillar has cut dividends in more than 30 years.

The company said from its Peoria headquarters, where directors met Wednesday, that reducing dividends—a move Wall Street analysts estimated could save Caterpillar about $95 million a year—is “an integral part of a comprehensive program” to cut costs and conserve cash.

Waukegan teachers walk the line

WAUKEGAN, Ill.—As Waukegan school teachers began walking the picket line Wednesday, a planned cut in medical benefits heightened the threat of a strike in Chicago, with the nation's third-largest school district.

Across Illinois, five teacher strikes involved 1,384 teachers and 23,060 students.

The walkout by 662 members of Local 504 of the Lake County Federation of Teachers, has closed the 22 schools in Waukegan District 60 for 11,600 students.

A seven-hour negotiation session with a federal mediator ended late Tuesday.

“Our proposed increase amounts to $3,359 per teacher over the life of the contract, while their last proposal to us is $4,469,” school board President James Maurice said. “That’s over $1 million separation for the two years.”

Age creeps into campaign trails as makeup creates youthful look

(AP)—President Reagan said Wednesday, “I wasn’t tired” during last Sunday’s televised campaign debate, adding that Walter F. Mondale looked younger than his years because he wore makeup. Reported Mondale, “That’s the same answer (Richard) Nixon gave” after his 1960 presidential debate.

While Mondale claimed the campaign is “red hot,” a new ABC News poll conducted Monday and Tuesday indicated scant movement in the horserace figures.

Interviews with 1,035 registered voters said Reagan leads Mondale by 56-41 with 3 percent undecided—a 15 point margin. Only last week, the ABC News-Washington Post survey put Reagan’s edge at 18 points, 55-37 with 8 percent undecided. The difference between an 18-point lead and a 15-point margin is not statistically significant.

White House aides, struggling to cope with a potentially damaging setback in a smooth-running re-election campaign, quickly released 5-month-old medical test results that reported the 73-year-old president a “mentally alert, robust man who appears younger than his stated age.”

Mondale mentioned neither health nor age, and dismissed Reagan’s discussion of facial makeup. “The problem isn’t makeup on the face, it’s the makeup on those answers that gave you problems,” he said.

The Democrat told a large, boisterous crowd in Pittsburgh that his campaign is “on a roll,” and charged that despite a fresh pledge from the president to safeguard Social Security benefits for current and future recipients, the president “can’t keep his hands off that program.”

The president struggled to regain the campaign momentum as the new ABC News poll said Mondale had picked up strength after the debate and that Reagan’s substantial lead showed signs of narrowing. The president attacked his challenger in a series of campaign stops across Michigan for planning to “raise taxes and raise ‘em again,” and making his career out of a weakening America’s armed forces.”

Reagan and Mondale sparred long distance as Vice President George Bush and Geraldine Ferraro prepared in private for Thursday’s vice presidential debate in Philadelphia.

Duarte and rebel leaders to meet

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)—Calling it a “moment of great promise,” Secretary of State George P. Shultz met with Jose Napoleon Duarte Wednesday, four days before the Salvadoran president’s first planned meeting with rebel leaders.

“We are here at a time of momentous events in the history of this republic,” Shultz said at San Salvador’s international airport.

“President Duarte has offered to meet without preconditions and without arms the guerrillas who have plagued this country,” he added. “This is an act of great courage, taken in pursuit of peace and national reconciliation. His initiative has our unqualified support.”

Foreign Minister Jorge Eduardo Tenorio, who greeted Shultz and his party at the airport, said the secretary had arrived at the “moment which we seek to reunite the Salvadoran family, at a time in which President Duarte has taken the initiative...”

Shultz contrasted the situation in El Salvador today with that two years ago when the rebels were at their strongest.

“No one disputes the progress that has been achieved. And, although many hurdles remain, this is a moment of great promise, and you have shown the initiative, the will, the courage to prevail,” Shultz said.

The talks with Duarte were private, but Shultz was expected to reaffirm the Reagan administration’s opposition to any agreement that would give the guerrillas a role in government unless they participate in elections. The leftist guerrillas have been fighting to overthrow the government for five years.

Duarte has said he also opposes any such move, and wants to encourage the insurgents to compete freely in the democratic process.

The secretary of state stopped in the capital of this embattled nation en route to Panama City, where he will represent the United States at the inauguration Thursday of that country’s new president, Nicolas Ardito Barletta.

The visit came a day after Duarte returned from the United Nations in New York.

Computer representative holds campus open house

by Amy Zurawski

A representative from Illinois Education Consortium will be on campus several times during the next few months to answer questions about purchasing computers, peripherals and software.

Richard Murdach, director of computer services for IEC, said the Apple 32-bit supermicro "Macintosh" and "Lisa" computers, and certain peripherals and software will be available at about 45 percent discount to Eastern students and faculty.

Barb Funk, data processing operator for the academic computer service, said IEC Representative Deb McKee will be conducting 15 minute consultations from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Oct. 11 and 25 in the Student Services Building, room B12A. She will also be available Nov. 15 and 29.

Although McKee has no appointments available for Oct. 11, Funk said appointments can still be scheduled for the other days by calling the Academic Computer Office.

In addition, an open house for all interested students, faculty and staff is scheduled for Oct. 18.

During the open house, McKee and a representative for Republic Midwest Visual will be available for questions. Also, the Apple Macintosh and Lisa computers will be on display.

Computer Services Director David Henard said he encourages all people interested in purchasing a computer to attend the open house and make an appointment to meet with McKee.

"When choosing a computer, it is very important to consider what the computer will be used for, what a type of software you are interested in and the size of the jobs that will be run," he said.

Henard said the prospective buyer needs to be educated and do a great amount of investigation before purchasing any computer.

He added that the price of computers is lower than it has ever been and he believes prices will continue to decrease in the future, although it will be at a slower rate.

Parking code violation may shut Panther Lounge

by Kevin McDermott

The fate of the Panther Lounge, 1412 Fourth Street, is still unclear after a Wednesday hearing between Charleston officials and the owners of the local tavern.

The purpose of the hearing, which was conducted from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., was to determine whether the Panther Lounge will lose its liquor license because of possible city code violations involving the number of parking spaces provided for its customers.

Panther Lounge owners Mike Bickers and Jim Sears and their attorney attended the hearing.

Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer said Wednesday, "It was obvious that we weren't going to get it (the hearing) done today" because of the tight schedules of the attorneys involved.

The continuance for the hearing has not yet been set, but may be sometime next week, he added.

City Attorney Tony Sunderman was not present at the hearing, but instead hired a special attorney at Bickers' request.

The attorney, David Nelson of Mattoon, did not have specifics on the charges, but said Bickers and Sears possibly violated a city ordinance calling for "a parking space for each two fixed seats, or so much square footage.

"The trial is nowhere near done," Nelson said, noting that more of the specifics in the case will come out during future hearings.

Nelson added that he was given the case because of a "possible conflict" with having Sunderman involved. However, he declined to elaborate.

Pfeiffer said he is not sure what the result of the hearings will be. "It's hard to say right now," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see."

Sears declined to comment on the hearing Wednesday, and Bickers could not be reached for comment.

Intramurals needs funds due to sponsor withdrawal

by Charlotte Arnold

The Apportionment Board Thursday will discuss requests for fund allocations for an Intramural newspaper and Sports and Recreation Board equipment.

AB chairman Tammy Walker said she will suggest advertising funding for intramurals because the search for a sponsor has been unsuccessful.

Intramural director Dave Dutler requested an AB allocation for advertising funds at the Sept. 13 AB meeting because the Old Style intramural sponsorship was denied.

However, action on this request was delayed to allow time for the board to search for another advertising sponsor.

In addition, Walker said Dutler is also seeking $1,072.20 to pay for sports equipment.

Dutler ordered the equipment last spring, but it was not delivered until Oct. 2, she noted. The cutoff date for payment on last year's budget was Sept. 30.

Walker noted that because the delivery was delayed, Dutler is requesting funds from the reserve.

In other business, AB will also consider a $20 budget transfer for the University Board Lecture committee.

The committee is seeking the budget transfer from its travel line to copying, to pay for the cost of copying lecture materials.

The Apportionment Board is scheduled to meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union addition Arcola-Tuscola room.

Student input vital to select key positions

Students will not be excluded from the decision-making process for replacing Eastern's resigning and retiring administrators—unless they exclude themselves by not attending candidates' interview sessions.

Currently, Eastern students have the opportunity to voice their opinions about the selection of two new administrators.

George Miller, Eastern's former vice president for administration and finance, resigned to take a similar position at Kansas State University, while former university relations director Ken Hessler retired.

The Board of Governors has decided student input regarding the replacement of university administrators is worthwhile. A time slot during the finalists' campus interviews is designated for students to meet and question each candidate.

So students have been given a voice—through the evaluation forms provided by the search committee—to help determine who will be filling these administrative positions.

Currently, five finalists are vying for the vice presidential position—a position vital to the university.

Specifically, the vice president for administration and finance serves as the chairman of the Council on University Planning and Budgeting, oversees all of Eastern's budgetary matters and determines what portion of state funding Eastern will request.

And it is now that the search process to find Eastern's next vice president for administration and finance has reached the stage of campus interviews. The first finalist's interviews will begin Oct. 15.

Meanwhile, the campus interviews for the university relations position began Oct. 10 and will continue until Oct. 16.

Students should attend the open interviews and express their opinions about which candidate they believe will best perform the job.

And students also should use their opportunity to help select the administrator who is essential in deciding how Eastern's dollars will be spent. An opportunity avoided is an opportunity wasted.

Your turn

Thanks volunteers!

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the behind-the-scenes people whose volunteer work gets little notice and thanks.

A few weeks ago, we had our fall blood drive and as usual it turned out very successful. Even though we didn't reach our goal of 1,700 pints, we did get 1,426 and as I've said before that's over 1,400 pints more than if we hadn't had the drive.

But if it hadn't been for the people mentioned below, we might not have had a blood drive. So my thanks go out to Dean Lowell, Mrs. Lowell and all the Red Cross volunteers for helping organize this drive and keeping it going smoothly.

Also, thanks to Rosemary Harris for doing all of the typing and addressing letters sent to volunteers. My thanks to Ruby Trimble for the information she supplied and to all the nurses that helped out.

My special thanks go out to the student co-chairs Diane Castellari, Sue Rachford, Mary Purcell, Diane Duing, Sheryl Budde, Betsy Martin, Tom Cragg, Carl Ohl, Andrea Domas, Dave Wasson, Mark Ahrens, Eric Sorenson, Jack Kelly and all the Lambda Chi's who helped do all the loading and unloading of the equipment and blood.

In addition, the response from the student volunteers was overwhelming. It seemed like we always had enough people for our needs. I thank all of the people mentioned for their help and dedication.

It couldn't have been done without their help, but all the planning and organizing would have gone for naught had it been for the last group of people I want to thank. And these people are the donors themselves.

Thank you everyone who gave and those who tried to give. I encourage everyone to give next semester. See you then.

Dan Zicarelli

Gay life disgusting

Editor:

I'm a junior at Eastern and thoroughly disgusted with the activities of gay individuals on this campus. Every year someone brings up the topic of gays on the editorial page and after a week or two of heated letters, the issue falls by the wayside.

Last week I was in the Health Service getting medicine for a cold. While waiting to see the doctor, I noticed the two "girls" sitting next to me were not exactly normal. As they caressed each others back and hands I suddenly felt an urge to vomit. It was one of the most sickening sights I've ever seen.

All I can say is please put it back in the closet. Being part of the 9,000 plus straight students on this campus, I don't feel I need to be exposed to this type of behavior.

I read in a newspaper recently that Switzerland is considering a bill in its parliament that would grant asylum to confessed gays wishing to escape harassment. So my advice is to take a life-long trip to some of the best skiing in the world and have a gay time in the Alps.

Randall C. Cooper

Opinions can count if you'll speak out

Casting a ballot in the Nov. 6 election is one way to express one's opinion, but it's certainly not the best way.

While voting allows Americans one voice every two or four years, effective democracy demands much more frequent exchange of ideas.

Opportunities for such expression arise every day in normal conversations. Every verbal interchange presents the chance to exchange ideas and thereby influence another's opinions on the day's issues.

Altering opinions and attitudes is the key to changing society. Sweeping social and political changes seldom begin at the national level, but rather at the grass roots level in the attitudes of the public.

Society's attitudinal change is evident when one examines the rights of blacks and women in recent years. Widespread acceptance of these groups' rights was not entirely legislated, but developed in the hearts and minds of most of the general public—the public that spurred change within itself via the exchange of ideas.

Each time someone expresses his opinion on an issue—whether it be civil rights, nuclear disarmament or possible increases in student fees—those hearing that statement have both the right and obligation to respond with their views.

For, as Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas once said, "Full and free discussion keeps a society from becoming stagnant and unprepared for the stresses and strains that work to tear all civilizations apart."

A well-known British author of the 19th century, John Stuart Mill, also noted the need for a free man to voice and hear opinions when he wrote, "it is [not]

Personal file:

enough that he should hear the arguments of his own adversaries from his own teachers...He must be able to hear them from persons who actually believe them; who defend them in earnest, and do their very utmost for them."

Often individuals choose not to speak their mind, claiming the desire to avoid conflict. But this is a lame excuse for withholding one's opinions, for greater damage can be done through silence.

Not long ago, then-President Richard Nixon said the "silent majority" stood behind him. That majority remained as he branded it—silent—and he seemingly took that silence as license to do as he pleased, even to the extent of breaking the law.

Remaining silent each time someone slurs a minority by calling its members pollocks, fags, niggers or dumb broads gives unspoken approval to the demeaning of the group.

The only way to combat such prejudice and to effect change in society is to speak out.

Casting votes on Nov. 6 and in every subsequent election is an obvious way to express one's opinion.

But speaking out on a daily basis, with family, friends and strangers alike, is just as important and can effect wide-ranging changes where it counts most—in the attitudes of others.

Student political groups strive for new votes

College Republicans switch emphasis to campaigning

by Joe Pepp

Eastern's College Republicans have combined efforts with Youth for Reagan for the Nov. 6 general election, said Peter Lund, coordinator for Illinois Youth for Reagan and secretary of College Republicans at Adrian College in Michigan.

Lund, who has taken a semester off from college to coordinate Youth for Reagan in Illinois, said his job is to organize groups at the various schools throughout the state and provide them with campaign update and literature.

"Agreement on Reagan's economic issues has drawn Democrats and independents to participate in Youth for Reagan nation-wide," Lund said.

Youth for Reagan was formed for students who support Reagan but are not necessarily committed to the party, Lund said. Youth for Reagan works nation-wide and covers more than 20 colleges and universities in Illinois, he added.

Laura Stoffel, co-chairman of Youth for Reagan and secretary of Eastern's College Republicans, said Eastern's Youth for Reagan organization consists of about 35 members, including many College Republicans.

"Involvement in Youth for Reagan allows students to meet local politicians, gain campaigning experience and learn about public affairs," Stoffel said. Youth for Reagan has managed to register about 800 voters and arranged for many absentee ballots, she added.

Stoffel said much of the Youth for Reagan's activities were aimed at getting students registered before the Oct. 9 deadline.

Scott Baker, president of College Republicans in Illinois said, "When the short term goals of Youth for Reagan are met, College Republicans will continue to work at mobilizing youths to establish the future foundation of the Republican party."

Randy Saucier, chairman of Youth for Reagan and Treasurer for the College Republicans at Eastern, said local candidates have received strong support from the College Republicans. "We have submitted their literature to all the voters we've registered," he said.

Now that the voter registration deadline has passed, Saucier said the College Republicans will switch their emphasis from registering students to campaigning for candidates.

"Our major task for the month of September was getting people registered to vote," he said. "Next week we're going to start the actual campaigning."

Saucier added that the two organizations are concentrating their campaign efforts on legislative and congressional candidates by keeping their various supporters informed.

"We'll mail directly to the people the literature we receive from all the candidates," he said. "We're really not going to have a drastic effect on Reagan's campaign. But with candidates like Crane and Weaver, we could swing the race either way."

Reducing student voter apathy is target for Democrats

by Sheila Billerbeck

In an effort to curb student apathy, Eastern's Young Democrats are working to promote political awareness and to encourage voter participation.

Ken Sjorslev, president of the student-oriented group, said the Young Democrats had a successful membership drive this fall, recruiting about 40 new members.

"Right now, our big thing is trying to recruit new members," Sjorslev said. "We want to get people interested in the process of politics."

Jim Mueller, Young Democrats publicity chairman, said he believes the group has received "quite a bit of response" from the membership drive in the Union.

"We try to get more voters for every election and it looks like we were pretty successful this time," Mueller said.

Although the group has been in existence "since at least 1948," Sjorslev said the Young Democrats have had problems becoming organized in the past few years.

"Last year there was no real organization with the group," Sjorslev said. "This fall we have officers and people who are willing to do some hard work."

Sjorslev said the Young Democrats promote various Democratic candidates on campus. He added, however, that he believes the candidates as people are more important than the party they are associated with.

"The people on this campus will vote for the person rather than the party because both sides have qualified candidates," Sjorslev said.

"This campus is conservative," Sjorslev continued. "A lot of people seem to be supporting the best candidates—not necessarily the Democrats or the Republicans."

The group backs such Democrats as U.S. Senate candidate Paul Simon, Congressional candidate Terry Bruce and State Representative candidate Robert Webb. Sjorslev said the group has worked on a number of projects to get their major candidates known on campus.

The Young Democrats have set up tables in the Union, canvassed the campus to encourage students to register to vote, called students on the phone to promote the candidates and distributed literature on the various candidates.

"We've received good responses from Simon, Bruce and Webb," Sjorslev said. "I believe we've had some good candidates to campaign for."

Young Democrats adviser Ed Brazil said he believes the organization is an effective group on campus.

"They've made people aware of the issues and have encouraged people to vote," Brazil said.

Sjorslev said the Young Democrats have a "good working relationship" with the Young Republicans. Plans for a debate between the two groups is currently being discussed, he added.

"If we have a debate, we will be discussing the platforms and the issues of each group, not necessarily the individual candidates," Sjorslev said.

Shy New York girl changes First Lady's historic role

by Dawn Stultz

Eleanor Roosevelt went from a shy young girl who was brought up in one of the most conservative households in New York City to a woman who would speak to anyone about any subject and was not afraid to express her feelings and ideas.

Roosevelt was honored in the form of a lecture presented Monday by June Sochen, history professor from Northeastern University in Chicago. Thursday marks the 100th anniversary of Mrs. Roosevelt's birth.

Sochen said, "Eleanor Roosevelt had a very aristocratic way of speaking. She was also very spontaneous." She said Roosevelt transformed herself several times during her life.

Sochen said, "She was never comfortable with society. She was raised to believe the rich should help the poor and had an enormous capacity for consideration of others."

She met Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1903 when she was 19 and they were married in 1905.

Sochen noted, "Mr. Roosevelt was just the opposite of Eleanor. He possessed all the gaiety and outgoingness that she lacked. In some ways she was his balance."

In addition, she changed the definition of the First Lady. Sochen said, "Her biggest fear was that she would become a bird in a gilded cage."

"She held regular press conferences, for women journalists only. This made the press corps very happy because for the first times women were getting front page stories with bylines."

merchants, the student government had to print six half-page ads in the campus newspaper.

To replace the cost of the additional four half-page ads, the student government asked the News to co-sponsor the program.

Madeleine Doubek, News editor in chief, said, "We (the editorial board) thought it would be in the best interest of the students," to co-sponsor the program.

"We have a history of doing public service projects," including summer in review issues and printing sample election ballots for Coles County.

"I hope that the students understand that we are not supporting student government, we are supporting the student discount cards," she noted.

In addition, "We did not want to see the students lose out by not having the discount cards," Doubek said.

The distribution of the discount cards will begin Oct. 15.

In addition to the cards, the student government will distribute informational sheets listing the merchants.

Pep rally set to 'fire' spirit

by Peter Brousil

A bonfire and pep rally for Homecoming '84 is scheduled to be conducted at 8 p.m. Thursday on the Lawson-Thomas Hall tennis courts.

Jill Zimmerman, student activities director, said, "This is always a big affair. We expect 1,000 students to show up."

Zimmerman added, "The bulk of these students will be in groups competing for points that will help win the spirit award at the end of the year."

She said the groups that compete are comprised mostly of sororities and fraternities.

"For 45 minutes there will be coaches speaking, organizations cheering, Pink Panthers pom poming, the band playing and cheerleaders cheering," Zimmerman said.

After the coaches, players and students get all psyched up, the excitement will move off the tennis courts to the bonfire.

"During the bonfire competing groups are encouraged to throw life-size dummies of SIU's football players into the fire," Zimmerman added.

After all the excitement has died down the Charleston fire department will put out the fire. "But," Zimmerman added, "we will keep the fire going as long as a good amount of students are there."

Campus election drives yield 1,500 student voters

by Lesley Richards

About 1,500 Eastern students are now registered to vote in the November general election, due to on-campus registration drive efforts.

Several organizations including Student Senate conducted registration drives to get students registered by the Oct. 1 on-campus deadline.

A "carnival" drive conducted Sept. 27 and 28 yielded just above 400 newly-registered voters, which was several thousand short of the goal of "200,000" set by Butler.

"I was really happy with the turn out. Hopefully, next year the carnival will run longer than two days," Butler said.

The total from the two-day carnival combined with voter registration drives conducted in each residence hall, reached a final count of 802.

Student Senator Theresa Collard, who headed the residence hall drives, said she thought the drives went very well adding that she hopes voter registration drives would be done in the future.

"We needed more people to help with the registering," Butler noted.

In addition to the drives held by the Student Senate registrars, there were also deputy registrars going door-to-door on campus.

Randy Socier, precinct committeeman and coordinator of the Youth for Reagan organization, registered 170 students alone.

Socier, along with other individual deputy registrars, brought in about 346 registered voters, bringing the campus total to just under 1,500.

Totals for the Coles County area voter registration drives, including off-campus drives, will be available Oct. 17.

Still no Fixx OK

The University Board still has not received written confirmation on a verbal agreement to have The Fixx perform Nov. 11 at Eastern, UB Chairman Floyd Akins said Wednesday.

The UB reached a verbal agreement with the agency Monday to have The Fixx perform on Nov. 11, however the UB is waiting for written confirmation of that agreement, Akins said.

Akins said the UB may receive confirmation Thursday.

Cost for the Fixx to perform at Eastern will be $15,000 plus $3,500 for production expenses and $2,500 for the supporting act.

Tickets on sale for Anne Frank

Tickets for the Theater Department's Homecoming production, "The Diary of Anne Frank" are on sale in the Ticket Office of the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

The play, which opens Friday for five consecutive performances through Oct. 16, is a chronicle about a teen-age girl who hid for two years from Nazis in a garret before her arrest and death in a concentration camp.

C.P. Blanchette is director of the season opener. All performances will be at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for senior citizens and children and $2 for Eastern students. For reservations and ticket information phone 3110 between 1-5 p.m. or stop by the Ticket Office.

San Diego evens the World Series with Bevacqua's three-run homer

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Kurt Bevacqua atoned for a rally-killing blunder in Game One with a three-run homer, vaulting San Diego over the Detroit Tigers Wednesday night and a split of the first two games of the 1984 World Series.

The American League champion Tigers scored three runs in the first inning off Ed Whitson, but this time, Padres Manager Dick Williams made his move before it was too late. Williams removed Whitson with one out left in the inning, and relief pitcher Andy Hawkins turned giant-killer.

The Padres, meanwhile, scratched back with a run in the first on Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly and another in the fourth on a fielder's choice grounder by Bobby Brown that scored Bevacqua to make it 3-2.

Then, in the fifth, the Padres finally chased Tigers starter Dan Petry, 18-8 during the season, with Bevacqua's three-run homer. In San Diego's 3-2 loss in Game One, Bevacqua had run the Padres out of a potential rally by stumbling while trying to stretch a leadoff double in the seventh inning into a triple. But Williams kept his faith in the 37-year-old designated hitter and moved him up three notches to sixth in the batting order.

His home run came after a walk to Nettles and a bad hop single by Terry Kennedy on a shot that bounced off second baseman Lou Whitaker's chest.

As he watched the ball sail into the left field seats, Bevacqua jumped in the air and spun around at first base. He pumped the No. 1 sign with a finger as he rounded second, and as he trotted around third, Bevacqua pressed both hands against his lips and blew a kiss to the crowd of 57,911 at Jack Murphy Stadium. Even in his moment of infamy on Tuesday night, they had not booed him. Now, they cheered him.

He wound up with three hits in the game, as did teammates Alan Wiggins and Garry Templeton.

The victory kept the Padres alive as the Series moves to Detroit for games No. 3, 4 and 5 on Friday night, Saturday and Sunday. No team had ever lost the first two games at home and come back to win a best-of-seven Series.

Hawkins also pitched two scoreless innings in Game One, giving up one hit in relief of starter Mark Thurmond, who had struggled all evening before leaving with Padres behind 3-2.

Globetrotters win suit

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Three Harlem Globetrotters on Wednesday reached a settlement of a $3 million civil rights lawsuit that contended the basketball players were stopped at gunpoint by Santa Barbara police just because they were black.

Neither side would disclose the amount of the settlement, which was reached in federal court following a three-hour, closed-door session. "We are not unhappy with it," said attorney Edward Bell, who represented the three Globetrotters.

The trial, which had been on its second day of testimony, was recessed pending ratification of the settlement by the Santa Barbara City Council. Santa Barbara City Attorney Steven Amerikaner said the council would consider the agreement Friday or Monday.

The suit had been filed against the City of Santa Barbara and 16 individuals.

"I would have really liked to put our case on in chronological order to show the jury what really happened," defense attorney George Franscell said of the aborted trial.

One of the plaintiffs, Ovie Dotson, also declined comment on terms of the agreement. He said he and his two teammates were leaving for a Friday night game in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

In testimony earlier in the day, a police lieutenant who ordered the three held at gunpoint during an armed robbery investigation said he did not check another officer's suggestion they were members of the famed basketball team.

Panthers' booter Swindells' goal is playing pro-soccer in the states

by Brent Feeney

Perhaps you've noticed him when the Eastern Illinois soccer Panthers take the field. He's the tall guy who wears number eight on his jersey.

Or perhaps you've noticed him when he comes in the stands to hand a spectating girl a rose—soccer's traditional thank-you for coming to the match.

If you don't see him then, you definitely see him when the match starts. He plays on the forward line, either using his considerable skills to set up plays or taking the ball himself, faking two or three defenders out of position, then firing a cannon ball into the back of the net.

If you've gone to the soccer matches at Lakeside Field, you know who this is. If you haven't been to any of the matches, meet Eastern soccer forward Neil Swindells.

Swindells, a junior majoring in personnel management, was born in Torquay, England, a small town on the south coast of Great Britain, which is where he started his soccer career.

"My dad was playing on a British third division team at the time (soccer in Britain is divided into four divisions, with the First Division recognized as one of the best in the world), which was one of several he played on during his career. He also played with the English National Team several times, as well as the English National Youth Team," Swindells said.

Since soccer is the national sport in England as in most of the world, Swindells began playing almost as soon as he began to walk.

"I was given my first pair of soccer shoes and began playing organized soccer at five—years—old, as most children in England do. My father taught me the basics of the game, and I feel that he was my biggest influence in the game," Swindells said.

Swindells said in England, unlike America, young boys grow up idolizing the top soccer players in the country, and Swindells was no different.

"I idolized two members of the Manchester City team, Dennis Tueart and Rodney Marsh. Both of them came to America to play in the North American Soccer League, Tueart with the New York Cosmos and Marsh with the Tampa Bay Rowdies."

After graduating from the English equivalent of high school, Swindells decided to attend a college in the United States. "Mostly, it was the opportunity to come live in America that brought me here. I really like it in the United States," he said. "There are more opportunities here, and the lifestyle is much better in America than it is in England."

Soccer is still a new sport in America, seventeen years after the formation of the NASL. Today, the indoor version of soccer, the MISL, is more popular than the outdoor version of the game.

"For soccer to improve in America, people must begin to understand the subtler points of the game," Swindells said. "There must be more coaches at the youth level who understand the game. As time goes on, though, I think that soccer will reach the level of popularity that other sports have in this nation."

After Swindells graduates, he'd like to play professionally in this country. "To be honest," Swindells said, "I'd like to play outdoors in the NASL. If things don't work out, I would like to play with either the St. Louis Steamers or the Dallas Sidekicks of the MISL."

His advice to players starting out in the game of soccer is simple. "Enjoy yourself," he said. "Have fun. That's what soccer is, just something to be enjoyed and have a good time with."

Sagging defense hinders gridders

Football Notebook/Jeff Long

Despite rumors that Eastern's defense would undergo changes after giving up 105 points in its last three games, defensive coordinator Larry Edlund said Wednesday the Panthers will stick with the same game plan.

Edlund said the biggest reason for the Panther's recent problems on defense has been a lack of consistency, due to the fact that eight of the Panther's 11 starters are first-year starters.

"At times, our defense has played very well," Edlund said. "Right now it is a matter of being young—we have only three seniors starting."

Eastern will face another tough test this weekend against Southern Illinois, which racked up 40 points last week against previously ranked Northern Iowa.

The Panthers are yielding an average of 24.1 points per game thus far. However, they gave up only 4 points in their first three contests.

NCAA I-AA Top 10

Indiana State retains its top ranking again for the second straight week in the NCAA's official poll of I-AA teams. Here are this week's top ten teams with records in brackets and points following.

1. Indiana State (5-0) . . . . . 85
2. Holy Cross (4-0) . . . . . 71
3. Murray State (5-0) . . . . . 70
4. Alcorn State (4-0) . . . . . 61
5. Boston U. (5-0) . . . . . 58
6. Furman (4-1) . . . . . 57
7. Tennessee State (5-0) . . . . . 55
8. Middle Tenn. (5-0) . . . . . 49
9. Arkansas State (4-2) . . . . . 47
10. McNeese State (4-1) . . . . . 46

Record Catchers

Wide receiver Jerry Wright is likely to break Eastern's all-time pass receiving yardage in either this weekend's homecoming game against Southern Illinois or next week at Western.

Wright, the All-American out of Chicago-Collins, enters Saturday's game with 2,033 career receiving yards, only 165 yards short of the school record 2,198 held by Willie White.

In addition, the speedy wide-out needs only 11 receptions to move into second on Eastern's career reception chart, and 49 to set a new school mark. Barring injury which sidelined him for one game earlier this year, Wright will play five more games. So far, he has caught 42 passes for 540 yards in his first five games.

Sophomore standout Roy Banks may be along with Wright in the record books before too long. The Detroit native has already converted eight of his 11 receptions into touchdowns to rank fifth in Eastern record books for a single season.

Banks needs two more TD catches to move into third. Eastern's single season record for touchdowns is 16, set by Scott McGhee in 1980. Banks could become the Panthers' deep threat this year. Of his eight touchdowns, four have been over 65 yards.

If he keeps catching bombs, Banks will pass his buddy Wright, who owns the fifth best single season total for receiving yardage (779) set in 1983. Banks is currently 81 yards short of Wright's mark and fourth place.
